

Aberdeen International Youth Festival

Young SC&T Traditional Music Course

Monday 31st – Friday 4th August 2017

10am – 3pm daily

Aberdeen International Youth Festival's Young SC&T course offers children in P4-P7 the chance to develop their skills and explore traditional Scottish music over the course of a week. Led by tutors from North-east Folk Collective and Scottish Traditions & Culture, participants will work alongside these experienced tutors and learn new tunes while playing in small and large ensembles. Applicants should be able to play some simple tunes on any instrument and be keen to work hard and try new tunes.

On the final day players will take part in a short performance showcasing what has been learnt during the week. This concert is as part of AIYF's Up Close & Musical series. The course also offers young people the chance to meet and watch the older musicians from the AIYF Traditional Music School, and receive complimentary tickets to some AIYF festival shows throughout the week.

For more information about the course please contact the AIYF office at the details below.

Aberdeen International Youth Festival is a highlight of the cultural calendar, and provides opportunities for both local and international young performers. Since 1973 it has been at the forefront of nurturing creative talent and it continues to support young people across all art-forms.
